
Successful Brammer and Buck & Hickman Manufacturing Forum, Silverstone 2014

Earlier in 2014 Lambert was extremely honoured when Warren Limbert, Managing Director was invited to be a guest speaker at the prestigious Eighth Brammer and Buck & Hickman Manufacturing and Awards event being held at Silverstone racetrack in October 2014. The event, an opportunity for Brammer and Buck & Hickman customers and partners to gather and discuss the current topics and issues in the manufacturing industry, was attended by more than 200 delegates including a small team from Lambert.

Among them were leaders from major manufacturers including Siemens, The Royal Mint and GKN Aerospace, as well as editors from key industry media. Guest speakers at the forum included behavioural expert Jez Rose. Other speakers included managing director of Weatherford, Daryl Stroud exploring the supply chain, Douglas Dawson, COO at Caparo discussing the challenges of attracting young people into manufacturing and Warren Limbert sharing the successful apprenticeship and mentoring programmes run at Lambert.

Warren Limbert, Managing Director of Lambert

We all know many manufacturing organisations have concerns about the ability of the UK's manufacturing and engineering sectors to recruit sufficient numbers of staff. More than 80% of Lambert staff are engineers. As a result, being able to recruit a diverse range of engineers is crucial to our considerable and continuing success and part of this recruitment is dedicated to employing apprentices. To date 40 gentlemen have completed their full apprenticeship at Lambert, 17 are still with the company today, 3 in the position of Senior Managers.
